Jurisdiction and Venue

1. This action arises under the trademark and unfair competition laws of the United States. 15 U.S.C. §1051 et seq.

2. This Court has original jurisdiction over the subject matter of this action pursuant to 15 U.S.C. §1121(a) and 28 U.S.C. §§1331 and 1338, and supplemental jurisdiction over the pendent state and common law claims arising from the same nucleus of operative facts pursuant to 28 U.S.C. §1367(a).

3. Venue is proper in this judicial district under 28 U.S.C. § 1391(b), as Snow resides in Kaysville, Utah, and Snow Creative and Tara Lynn's places of business are both in Davis County, Utah. Further, venue is proper in this judicial district in that a substantial part of the events or omissions giving rise to the claim occurred in Davis County, Utah.

General Allegations

1. Plaintiff Ampersand designs, has manufactured, and sells various articles of women's clothing and accessories, including pants and bottoms, shirts and tops, skirts, dresses and tunics, jackets and outerwear, handbags, scarves, and footwear.

2. As part of its collection of women's clothing, Ampersand designs, has manufactured, and sells a unique style of women's sweatshirts having two hoods, which are branded DOUBLEHOOD.

3. Ampersand's DOUBLEHOOD sweatshirts have had exceptional consumer responses and sales.

4. Ampersand has created a strong and protectable brand in its DOUBLEHOOD sweatshirts using two unique trade dress schemes, each scheme signifying Ampersand as the source of these DOUBLEHOOD sweatshirts.

5. Ampersand's first trade dress scheme ("Trade Dress 1") consists of an outerwear top having a double layer of hoods joined in a seam at the neck of the top, with the two hoods connected to a single torso piece and the inner hood has opposing eyelets located in a lower region near the neck of the top. This trade dress scheme is shown as follows:

6. Ampersand's second trade dress scheme ("Trade Dress 2") consists of an outerwear top having a double layer of hoods joined in a seam at the neck of the top, with the two hoods connected to a single torso piece. The lower portion of the inner hood forms an overlapping "V" centered to the midline of the top. There are two eyelets positioned vertical to each other on the lower portion of the inner hood, with the eyelets being off-center from the midline of the top. The lower portion of the outer hood forms an open "V" that is positioned further off-center than the eyelets. There is a false zipper that extends from the outer "V" across the chest and towards the upper arm of the top. This trade dress scheme is shown as follows:

7. Ampersand's trade dress for its DOUBLEHOOD sweatshirts has acquired secondary meaning in the eyes of the public and represents Ampersand as the source of these high-quality products.

8. Ampersand's trade dress distinguishes its goods from the goods of others in the industry.

9. Ampersand has spent substantial time and money developing valuable goodwill in the eyes of the public and women's clothing and accessory consumers for its unique fashion designs.

10. Ampersand's DOUBLEHOOD products are recognized in the industry for their excellent material construction, appealing design, and high quality.

11. Defendants have full knowledge of Ampersand's rights in and to its trade dress, including its exclusive right to use the trade dress and the goodwill associated therewith.

12. Beginning at least as early as March 6, 2014, Defendants began soliciting Ampersand to become a wholesale customer and to gain access to Ampersand's product line, including its DOUBLEHOOD sweatshirts, when Defendant Snow wrote to Plaintiff asking, “Please let me know how to set up a wholesale account with your company.”

13. Defendants’ earliest purchase orders from Ampersand included Ampersand’s DOUBLEHOOD sweatshirts fashioned in their protectable trade dress designs.

14. Over the course of nearly three years, Defendants placed 72 separate product orders with Ampersand, including orders for Ampersand’s DOUBLEHOOD sweatshirts.

15. After building their own business using Ampersand’s proprietary DOUBLEHOOD trade dress designs, Defendants began sourcing imitation products from overseas manufacturers.

16. After acquiring their own infringing source of imitation products based on the protectable Trade Dress 1 and Trade Dress 2 designs, Defendants then stopped ordering DOUBLEHOOD products from Ampersand.

17. Defendants continue to market Ampersand’s DOUBLEHOOD sweatshirts by conspicuously and prominently displaying Ampersand’s protectable Trade Dress 1 and Trade Dress 2 designs. However, instead of delivering genuine Ampersand DOUBLEHOOD sweatshirts, Defendants provide cheap overseas imitations of Ampersand’s famous products.

18. Defendants are intentionally trading on Ampersand’s valuable goodwill by attracting customers using Ampersand’s famous trade dress and then duping unsuspecting consumers by providing cheap imitations.

19. Defendants’ web site, www.taralynnsboutique.com, uses and or has used Ampersand’s protectable trade dress in advertising its imitation products by displaying Ampersand’s Trade Dress 1 and Trade Dress 2 designs.

20. Defendants also advertise their infringing goods through other forms of social media, including Facebook and Instagram.

21. Defendants are intentionally trading on the goodwill built by Ampersand for its DOUBLEHOOD line of products.

22. Defendants' infringing imitation trade dress is confusingly similar to Ampersand's trade dress.

23. Ampersand began using its trade dress prior to Defendants' first use of the infringing trade dress.

24. Defendants' use of the infringing trade dress, which is substantially and confusingly similar to Ampersand's trade dress, is a contrivance for the purpose of misrepresenting their goods as being the same as, or somehow affiliated with, Ampersand.

25. On information and belief, Defendants are using the infringing trade dress to intentionally confuse consumers into believing that the infringing goods are actually the goods of Ampersand, or are otherwise sponsored by or affiliated with Ampersand.

26. Because of the confusing similarities between Ampersand's trade dress and the infringing trade dress, consumers are likely to purchase the infringing goods mistakenly believing they are produced or sponsored by Ampersand.

27. Defendants' infringing activities are likely to cause confusion, mistake and deception among the consuming public and trade as to the origin of Defendants' infringing goods.

28. Defendants' use of the infringing trade dress is false and misleading and misrepresents the nature, characteristics and quality of Defendants' goods.

29. Defendants' sales of the infringing goods have been with full knowledge or at least willful disregard of Ampersand's exclusive rights in and to Ampersand's trade dress.

30. Unless injunctive relief is granted, Defendants will continue to infringe on Ampersand's trade dress and cause irreparable injury to Ampersand.
